

For the first time in the new year 2011, I communicate with you by Myrtis' e-newsletter.

On Friday, 14th January 2011, the exhibition “Myrtis: Face to Face with the Past” opened in the Archaeological Museum of Thessaloniki, where it will run until the 13th March.

On Friday, 4th March, the Mayor of London, Boris Johnson, visited the Mipccc exhibition at the British Library. He was accompanied by his wife, Marina, and their children. The Mayor and his family were joined by other members of the London Mayor's family, including his daughter, Sophie, and his son, James. The Mayor and his family were all very impressed by the exhibition and the work of the Mipccc team.
